Synopsis of Music

ACT I.

I. OPNING CHORUS . . . . . Ensemble

"Let dour old age at nonsense rage,
Let wisdom censure folly,
The world's a stage, and not a cage,
Away with melancholy.
With merry hearts, we'll play our parts,
No matter what comes after ;
While sorrow's darts and fortune's smarts,
We'll drown with mirth and laughter."

II. "THE CUT-UP OF THE PLACE" . . . . . George and Chorus

"Oh, I'm a poor unfortunate with Nemesis importunate,
I seem to know where troubles grow,
I'm always in disgrace.
From all I get the glassy eye ; my dear kind teachers pass me by,
They never try to mollify
The "cut-up" of the place."

III. "SIMPLE" . . . . . Harold, George and Chorus

IV. "THE TRILL OF THE THRUSH" . . . . . Phil

V. "FRESHMAN SONG" . . . . . Sunshine and Freckman

VI. "PECULIAR" . . . . . George

VII. "FRIENDSHIP" . . . . . Henry

"Deep in the loving heart,
Where all attachments start,
Fed by affection's swells.
There Friendship swells.
On past Hopes golden gate,
Where Fondness hath its state,
Where Faith doth dominate,
There Friendship dwells."

VIII. "REFLECTIONS OF A REUBEN" . . . . . Hawks and Chorus

IX. "CLOSING CHORUS" . . . . . Henry and Chorus

"Springtime of life when sweet laughter is rife,
And the joy of existence flows full and strong,
Faith cannot die and hope runs high,
When the tide of fraternity sweeps us along.
For life is before, which is ours to explore,
Girded round with a mystic haze,
Fair are the dear old days of gladness,
Fair are our college days."

ACT II.

I. OPENING CHORUS—"BOOKS" . . . . . Phil and Chorus

"There are books of all descriptions,
And of every shape and size,
From a slim vest pocket effort,
To a life-work in disguise.
There are books that make you happy,
There are some that make you think,
There's a great deal more to books, you know,
Than the paper and the ink."

II. "SPRING MADNESS" . . . . . Phil

"When sunshine gladdens the fields,
And earth its redolence yields,
When winds and murmuring showers,
Have waked the slumbering flowers,
When birds are all on the wing,
When brooks their lullabies sing.
Then life's a glorious thing
In gentle spring."

III. "A PICTURE ON THE WALL" . . . . . Henry

"I've a friend, a faithful friend,
A friend who never flouts me,
Whom all my fancies can't offend,
Because she never doubts me,
I've known her years and years, but still,
Her name, I can't recall,
Because, you see, this maid is just
A picture on the wall."

IV. "WOES OF THE PIGSKIN" . . . . . George and Chorus

V. "MOONLIGHT REVERIES" . . . . . Hem,

"Fair though the scene,
Though the night be serene,
Still its charms are in vain
If this heart be sad,
All nature's art
Cannot rouse the dull heart,
Cannot gladness impart,
Nor happiness add."

VI. "THE TRUTH ABOUT THE INDIAN" . . . . . George and Chorus

"The Indian bride is quite denied
The pale-face maiden's luck."

VII. "QUARTETTE PLAIN" . . . . . Hanks and Quartette

VIII. FINALE . . . . . Ensemble

"Fair are the dear old days of college
Fair are our college days."
